ABOUT

Christopher Robertson Jr. J.D. / C.P.A. , serves as a Senior Real Estate Analyst, specializing in the meticulous analysis of real estate transactions for potential buyers or sellers of real estate investments. His role extends beyond the conventional broker responsibilities, encompassing financial modeling, deal structuring, and debt analysis. Christopher excels in assembling deals and providing comprehensive support to clients who seek assistance beyond a standard broker role. He also works as a broker for office, retail, and industrial clients, including landlords and tenants.

Christopher's academic achievements include earning his Certified Public Accountant designation in 2009 and graduating from the Southern Methodist University Dedman School of Law with a Juris Doctorate in Law. His legal studies focused on Tax, Real Estate, and Public Policy. He also holds a Magna Cum Laude degree in Business Administration Finance and Accounting, as well as a Magna Cum Laude degree in Public Policy, both from Southern Methodist University.

With a background in family project development, Christopher brings a unique owners' perspective to real estate transactions. His diverse experience, especially in hospitality, office, and commercial projects, sets him apart, providing clients with valuable insights beyond traditional brokerage roles.

Christopher's contributions have garnered recognition, with awards for deal flow amounts and local transactions of the year. He played a pivotal role in significant office renewals during challenging market conditions and participated in the post-pandemic sale of multiple multimillion-dollar shopping centers, office buildings, and specialty structures.
